 As part of the process of establishing assessment rates, WorkSafeNB reviews the structure of industry and rate groups each year. These groups are restructured if emerging cost experience indicates that this would be appropriate. The impact of any change in industry and the rate groups on the basic rate is limited to a 20% decrease or the greater of a 20% or $0.20 increase.*

WorkSafeNB began using the North American Industry Classification System (NAICS) coding to establish assessment rates in 2009. As a result employers were assigned to new industries, industry groups and rate groups. Most employers continue to be classified with most of the same industries as before and their assessment rates will not be affected significantly by this change. Others fell into different industry and rate groups. The few industries with significant basic rate changes will have a maximum limit applied annually until the target basic rate is met. Basic rate decreases will be limited to 20%. Basic rate increases will be limited to the greater of 20% or $0.20. Experience rating, the comparison of qualifying employers to others in their rate group leading to rate surcharges or reductions based on performance, will continue to be applied as usual.

All employer operations have been assigned a new NAICS Code effective January 1, 2009 and their 2009 onward assessment rate will reflect this new classification code. This change may result in an increase or decrease in an individual employer's 2009 onward basic rate when compared to previous year's basic rates. To minimize the impact that this change may have, WorkSafeNB has capped the annual increases and decreases of the basic assessment rates at the individual employer level until all employers within the industry class are at the same basic rate. Some employers within the same classification may not be at the same basic rate during this transition period.
